

NILES OUTLINES YEAR'S PROGRAM

Tells in 'Inaugural' Talk
What He Hopes to See

INDUSTRY NEEDS HELP

Many Building and Development Projects Need Attention by Citizens, He Says

Many building and development projects are facing the city of Tulsa and should be given co-operative attention by the citizenship this year. Alva J. Niles, newly elected president of the chamber of commerce, said at the meeting of the members of the organization at Hotel Tulsa Friday noon. Niles' talk was characterized by directors as his "inaugural" address. In it he set forth in detail the projects that should be either started or completed, or both, as quickly as possible.

They are the encouragement and development of agriculture, reclamation of building, creation of closer relations between employers and employees obtaining a new water supply, building a belt line connecting all railroads, starting actual construction work on the Tulsa Industrial and Livestock exposition, development of Central University and Tulsa Normal School, improving the enlarged hotel facilities, correcting the high rent situation, expanding public parks and boulevards, evaluation of Tulsa's trade territory, development of agricultural and livestock interests, protection of the oil fields and gas industry, securing better street railway transportation, and creating a united charities association.

Niles especially urged the appointment or formation of a large committee to handle all local charity cases. Such a committee, he said, would prevent the frequent drives and solicitations as one campaign money would be concentrated to gain funds for handling the work for a year.

Many Tulsa Teachers Attending Conference

Among the teachers from the world schools who are attending the third day conference of the Oklahoma Educational Association in Oklahoma City are Perry Carmichael, Central Grade; Leon Baker, Miss Miriam Crassaw and Miss Eleana Gordon from Kendall; Paul Powell from Lincoln; Mrs. Anna M. Thompson, William B. Bradshaw and Miss Rose Heyman; Ray Bradshaw, Mrs. Norma Kraus, Miss Pauline Chase, Miss Eunice Hawkins and Miss Nell Dean, Whit-

"We need," said Reverend Crum in part, "to think of others in order not to think too much about ourselves." As Charles Blattner puts it, "There can be no limit to the association one with another, to the fellowship, to the community of good. I cannot help but feel that our Lord prayed, 'Our Father,' in that first word. Reverend Crum pointed out the window of the soul is opened to the sunshine of human fellowship, whether praying alone or in the company of others. Those words, 'Our Father,' are capable of bringing us back at once from a state of self-centeredness and self-pity to a realization of the fact that experience common to one, is common to all."

Members of the local brickmen union have agreed to lay brick or other clay products even though manufactured by convict labor, it was announced at the weekly meeting of directors of the chamber of commerce here yesterday morning, Friday, February 11. Clarence H. Douglas, managing director, who made the announcement, said that while bricks made by convicts may be obtained more cheaply than those manufactured in Tulsa, preference should be given to local institutions if possible.

WILLARD OFFICERS NAMED

Annual Election Held Friday; Reports on Year's Activities Read.

The Frances Willard home board which held its annual election of officers and reading of the annual reports yesterday in the home of Mrs. George O. Holloway has announced its new official staff as follows: Mrs. G. O. Holloway, president; Mrs. Clarence J. Hindman, vice-president; Mrs. James W. Shan, vice-president; Mrs. G. W. King, recording secretary; Mrs. W. M. French, treasurer.

The one thought of the board for the future is the building of a new unit for the older girls who reside at the home. The efforts of the board are to be concentrated on the proposed addition during the next few months.

Merchants in Demand for an Investigation of City Light Rates

MISS M'SWINEY'S AGENT IN TULSA

Plans Being Made for Appearance Here of Lord Mayor's Relative

It has been decided by the Retail Merchants' association that there is too much dissatisfaction in Tulsa caused by the Public Service company and the Sand Springs Electric company. At a meeting of the mayor and city commissioners Friday morning a committee from the association composed of E. S. Hutchinson, president; W. A. Rajson, secretary; Sam Hiltz, Simon Jankevics, L. G. Roscoe, Frank Cassebeer and W. A. Vandt presented a request that rates be investigated.

It was stated that the Public Service company charges four cents a kilowatt and 10 cents a kilowatt-hour for electric power. The merchants' association also wants double connections in their places of business so they can make necessary changes from one service to another. O. A. Steiner, commissioner of streets and public property, and Frank E. Denman, city attorney, were appointed to investigate prices.

SOCIAL CONTACT BASIS FOR GOOD

Reverend Crum in Lenten Service Outlines His Code of Men

The good that is in us comes largely as the result of contact with our fellowmen and the fatherhood of God, said men brothers in His Church of Christianity and its workers a social, and not a selfish thing, declared Rev. R. P. Crum in his noonday Lenten sermon yesterday in the Orpheum theater. Reverend Crum preached the first of a series of Lenten sermons in which Protestant ministers co-operating in these meetings are having a part on the first two weeks of the Lord's prayer, "Our Father."

In that first word, Reverend Crum pointed out, the window of the soul is opened to the sunshine of human fellowship, whether praying alone or in the company of others. Those words, "Our Father," are capable of bringing us back at once from a state of self-centeredness and self-pity to a realization of the fact that experience common to one, is common to all.

"We need," said Reverend Crum in part, "to think of others in order not to think too much about ourselves." As Charles Blattner puts it, "There can be no limit to the association one with another, to the fellowship, to the community of good. I cannot help but feel that our Lord prayed, 'Our Father,' in that first word. Reverend Crum pointed out the window of the soul is opened to the sunshine of human fellowship, whether praying alone or in the company of others. Those words, "Our Father," are capable of bringing us back at once from a state of self-centeredness and self-pity to a realization of the fact that experience common to one, is common to all."

Emphasizing the fact that there are too many overindulgent fathers, just as there are unfortunately, tyrannical fathers, Reverend Crum discussed the safety, the trust, the love that a child feels for a good and just and loving father. How much more, he said, should all people who pray "Our Father" feel utterly safe and at peace within the shadow of that love and protection.

The question is often asked us why we can sell so cheap. The answer is, "We have the capital and the price paid by the mechanics, we own the building that we are doing business in and have no high rents to pay. You just have to walk a little further up First street to get to our store for the better prices."
